SCHOOL FAIR

This years school fair, after an absence of 2 years, was a huge success. It was great to see the work put in by the whole school community and even better to see the Secondary and Primary working as a team.

Many people from outside attended as well as the wonderful sponsors. Overall we had an enormous 150 prizes for our raffle. This helped us raise an amount of $2,960 /6,403,400 Riel. We added 2019's donations of $2 701,25 and both hospitals have now received their donations. We are very proud of this achievement.

Well done everyone a very pleasing day.

The importance of parents helping with homework is invaluable. Helping with homework is an important responsibility as a parent and directly supports the learning process. Parents' experience and expertise is priceless.

CLASS ACTIVITIES IN OCTOBER

One of the best predictors of success in school is learning at home and being involved in children's education. Parental involvement with homework helps develop self-confidence and motivation in the classroom.

Parents helping students with homework has a multitude of benefits including spending individual time with children, enlightening strengths and weaknesses, making learning more meaningful, and having higher aspirations.

HOW PARENTAL INVOLVEMENT WITH HOMEWORK IMPACTS STUDENTS

Parental involvement with homework impacts students in a positive way. One of the most important reasons for parental involvement is that it helps alleviate stress and anxiety if the students are facing challenges with specific skills or topics.

Parents usually have the experience and expertise with a variety of subject matter and life experiences to help increase relevance. Parents can help their children understand the content and make it more meaningful, while also helping them understand things more clearly.

Also, Parental involvement increases skill and subject retention. Parents may get into more depth about content and allow students to take skills to a greater level.

Many children will always remember the times spent together working on homework or classroom projects. Parental involvement with homework and engagement in their child's education is related to higher academic performance, better social skills and behaviour, and increased self-confidence.

Parents helping with homework allows more time to expand upon subjects or skills since learning can be accelerated in the classroom.

This is especially true in today's classrooms. The curricula in many classrooms is enhanced and requires teaching a lot of content in a small amount of time.

Homework is when parents and children can spend extra time on skills and subject matter. Parents provide relatable reasons for learning skills, and children retain information in greater depth.

Parental involvement increases creativity and induces critical-thinking skills in children. This in turn creates a positive learning environment at home and transfers into the classroom setting. Parents have perspectives on their children, and this allows them to support their weaknesses while expanding upon their strengths. The time together enlightens parents as to exactly what their child's strengths and weaknesses are.
