Excellence Through Consistency

What a wonderful first month it has been! From the warm welcome I have received to the energy, curiosity and enthusiasm I have seen in our classrooms, I already feel incredibly fortunate to be part of the ISSR family.

Drawing upon 27 years of experience in education—including more than 12 years in senior leadership and the privilege of establishing and leading international schools—I have seen first-hand what helps children flourish.

One belief has remained at the heart of everything I do: every child can succeed when they feel safe, supported, valued and inspired. I am excited to bring my experience, energy and passion for learning to ISSR—and even more excited about what we can achieve together.

Our focus for this academic year is Excellence Through Consistency.

Excellence is not created through one outstanding lesson, one excellent week or one special event. It is built through the small things we do well, every day. It comes from arriving on time, wearing our uniform with pride, showing good manners, being prepared to learn, completing work carefully and treating others with kindness and respect. When these positive actions become consistent habits, excellence naturally follows.

For our teachers, consistency means creating calm, purposeful classrooms with clear routines and high expectations. It means providing engaging lessons, offering regular feedback and ensuring that every student receives the support or challenge they need. It also means working collaboratively, sharing effective practice and using assessment carefully to identify the next steps in learning.

For our students, it means understanding that progress does not always happen in one big leap. It happens one step, one page, one question and one positive choice at a time. We want our students to be ambitious, resilient and proud of their achievements. We also want them to understand that making mistakes is part of learning—as long as they reflect, try again and keep moving forward.

Families also play an essential role. When the expectations at home and school work together, children feel more secure and are better able to succeed. Supporting regular attendance, punctuality, reading at home, homework routines and good communication with teachers makes an enormous difference. Our partnership with parents is something we genuinely value, and I look forward to getting to know more of you over the coming weeks.

This year, we will celebrate success, learn from challenges and continue raising expectations together. Excellence is not about being perfect—it is about giving our best consistently and helping one another to improve.

I am delighted to begin this journey with you. Together, with shared purpose, positive habits and consistent high standards, we can make this an exceptional year for every ISSR student.

MEET AND GREET EVENING

What a fantastic evening at ISSR!

Our Parent–Teacher Meet & Greet was a wonderful success, with a fantastic turnout from our ISSR families.

Parents met our teachers, discovered more about the teaching and learning planned for the year ahead, visited classrooms and enjoyed seeing the wonderful work our students have already begun producing.

Families also had the opportunity to sample our new catering service, taste some of the dishes and share their valuable feedback.

Most importantly, the evening was about strengthening the partnership between parents, teachers and students and celebrating the warm, welcoming community that makes ISSR such a special place.

Thank you to everyone who joined us and to our entire ISSR team for making the evening such a success.

Good nutrition is an important part of a successful school day.
